DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-6 are currently pending.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970);and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

2. Claims 1-6 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over the claims of U.S. Patent Nos. 6,709,682, 6,344,220, or 5,91,565. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the patents all teach a composition that contains all of the ingredients currently claimed. The patents include additional ingredients, but there is a significant overlap in scope between the current claims and the patented claims. Thus, terminal disclaimers over the patents are clearly needed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

> (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hirschhorn (The Home Herbal Doctor (1982), Parker Publishing Company, Inc.: New York, pp. 50-51), Hobbs (Handbook for Herbal Healing (January 1995), Botanica Press: California, pp. 62 and 63), Castleman (Healing Herbs (1991), Rodale Press: Pennsylvania, pp. 37-39, 75-78, 186-189, and 355-357), US Pat. No. 5,364,845, and US Pat. No. 3,887,703.

The claims are drawn to a composition that contains devil's claw, alfalfa, yucca, ginger, turmeric, black cohosh, glucosamine and mucopolysaccharides.

Hirschhorn teaches using devil's claw to treat arthritis (see page 50, first paragraph).

Hobbs teaches that yucca and turmeric have antiinflammatory activity and can be used in a preparation to treat arthritis.

Castleman teaches that alfalfa can be used to treat arthritis (see page 37). In addition, Castleman teaches that black cohosh can be used to treat arthritis (see page 77). Castleman also teaches using ginger to treat arthritis (see page 188). Furthermore, Castleman teaches that turmeric can be used to treat arthritis (see page 356).

US '845 teaches using glucosamine to treat arthritis (see claims and column 1, lines 15-23).

US '703 teaches using mucopolysaccharides to treat arthritis (see column 14, lines 8-20).

These references show that it was well known in the art at the time of the invention to use devil's claw, alfalfa, yucca, ginger, turmeric, black cohosh, glucosamine, and mucopolysaccharides in arthritis treating compositions. It is well known that it is prima facie obvious to combine two or more ingredients each of which is taught by the prior art to be useful for the same purpose in order to form a third composition which is useful for the same purpose. The idea for combining them flows logically from their having been used individually in the prior art. In re Pinten, 459 F.2d 1053, 173 USPQ 801 (CCPA 1972); In re Susi, 58 CCPA 1074, 1079-80; 440 F.2d 442, 445; 169 USPQ 423, 426 (1971); In re Crockett, 47 CCPA 1018, 1020-21; 279 F.2d 274, 276-277; 126 USPQ 186, 188 (1960).

Based on the disclosure by these references that these substances are used in arthritis treating compositions, an artisan of ordinary skill would have a reasonable expectation that a combination of the substances would also be useful in creating an arthritis treating compositions. Therefore, the artisan would have been motivated to combine devil's claw, alfalfa, yucca, ginger, turmeric, black cohosh, glucosamine and mucopolysaccharides into a composition. No patentable invention resides in combining old ingredients of known properties where the results obtained thereby are no more than the additive effect of the ingredients. See In re Sussman, 1943 C.D. 518; In re Huellmantel 139 USPQ 496; In re Crockett 126 USPQ 186.

The references do not specifically teach adding the ingredients in the amounts claimed by applicant. The amount of a specific ingredient in a composition is clearly a result effective parameter that a person of ordinary skill in the art would routinely optimize. Optimization of parameters is a routine practice that would be obvious for a person of ordinary skill in the art to employ. It would have been customary for an artisan of ordinary skill to determine the optimal amount of each ingredient to add in order to best achieve the desired results. Thus, absent some demonstration of unexpected results from the claimed parameters, this optimization of ingredient amount would have been obvious at the time of applicant's invention.
